

ABSTRACT

A colour management user interface controller is provided for use in a colour management system for assisting users to manage colour settings of multiple colour entities, such as colour devices and colour spaces. The user interface controller has a representation controller and a relation indicator controller. The representation controller presents representation of each colour entity. The relation indicator controller presents one or more relation indicators indicating colour relation between the colour entities represented by the representations.

20250429 14:29:00